

I've heard that the FCC is considering a proposal to give LPFM stations priority over current translator service. In our local, KLove Christian radio comes to us over a translator. KLove is enjoyed by thousands of families in the Denver area, as it is positive, uplifting and definitely family friendly. In these times of extreme stressful situations in our country and many families, it is very important that we keep broadcasts from stations like Klove on the air, and not have it displaced with some other type of programming. Thank you for your consideration.
